AUGUST AAMOLD, VIOLINIST.

W. F. Heath, president of the Music Teachers' National association, held at Philadelphia 1880, writes to the Press after hearing the Norwegian violinist, August Aamold, as follows: "He is an artist of the highest grade. He plays on a violin valued at 85,000. To say that his playing is in keeping with the quality of his violin is only stating the truth. His technique is clear, his tone is of a rare and fine amality clear, his tone is of a rare and fine anality is clear, his tone is of a rare and fine quality beyond description, and his interpretation is of that dreamy, and at other times brilliant, quality not often heard from the same artist. The true artist is distinguished from the mechanical or imitative musician by the individuality of his playing, which is peculiar to himself, and it is this individuality that always charms an audience. The Chicago Herald says (May 7, 1890): "Louis Elbel, the child planist, who though but 11 years old, played with remarkable grace and finish. He also appeared in some of the concerts with Kavanagh, the boy singer, and received more than his share of the honor. He is a hand-some boy, attracting the attention of all

H. M. Culter was elected vice president, and Miss Josie Millen was elected secretary. R. W. Craig was appointed reporting secretary by the president.

After speeches by the newly elected officers the president introduced Judge A.

R. Museller, who delivered an address upon the subject of "Cranks," which was spicy and was well received by the teachers. The judge spoke as follows:

Cranks are individuals, usually men, born before the world is ready for their reception. They are nearly always, in consequence of that fact, entirely too previous. There is no niche in the glorious temple of fame for them to fill, and as they believe they are commissioned from on high to fill something, they proceed at conce to bew a niche for themselves in harmony with their notion of the eternal lit.

country is best governed which is least governed," says a second. "Down with the National banks, they are the cause of all our trouble," shouts a fourth. "Give me a warehouse receipt for my corn in the crib." cries a fourth.

"Want one too," shouts number five. "although my corn is still in the field, but then I was tired and could not hush it," and so it goes on and on. These fellows compel us to think and act. We call them I cranks, day dreamers, enthusiasts, yet many theories now obtain in this country which were considered vagries fifty years ago. I said the political crank was just now a conspicuous feature of our landscape. The inflation of prices a few years ago, occasioned by the heavy influx of money and people, tempted many of us to a become speculators. We mortgaged what property we owned, bought more than we could pay the cash for and langued at the foolish coupon clipper for being such a functe as to loan us money at such a time. I we structed the streets and felt like we would not take any ordinary boot between ourselves and Jay Gonil. We assumed
